Kourtney Royster
Alamance County Board of Commissioners

BIOGRAPHY/ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Bio:
Kourtney Royster is a Burlington native and graduate of Cummings High School and Clemson University. He has a background in mental health counseling and working with young people, including supporting students' well-being in schools. His work has focused on helping young people and underserved communities connect with the resources and support they need.

Why he's running:
Kourtney Royster is running for Alamance County Commissioner because he believes Alamance County deserves better and that our young people deserve a fully funded public school system. He wants to bring his experience working with young people and communities to county government and help make sure families and communities have access to the resources they need to thrive.
