DOWN HOME NORTH CAROLINA

Mark Speed
North Carolina House Representative, District 7

BIOGRAPHY/ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Bio:
Mark Speed has served as a Franklin County Commissioner since 2017, first by appointment and then through elections in 2020 and 2024. He has also served on numerous community boards, working to improve Franklin County and surrounding communities. Public service runs deep in his family—his grandfather served on the Franklin County Commission in the 1920s, and his father, James D. Speed, represented the community in the North Carolina General Assembly for more than 30 years. Mark lives in Louisburg with his wife of 28 years, Camille, and they are members of Red Bud Baptist Church.

Why he's running:
Mark is running to bring his experience serving Franklin County to the state level and continue fighting for working families. During his time on the County Commission, he has focused on funding public schools, improving public services, supporting small businesses, and lowering taxes. His campaign is rooted in continuing that work and ensuring local communities are represented in Raleigh.

Public Education:	• Support and adequately fund public schools.
Public Services:	• Improve the services families depend on every day.
Small Businesses:	• Support local businesses and strengthen the local economy.
Lower Taxes:	• Work to reduce the tax burden on working families.
Community Representation:	• Bring local experience and Franklin County's needs to Raleigh.
